DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 1-9 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Cortner, Jr. (3,902,461) in view of Mowbray et al (4,074,659). Cortner, Jr. Shows a method of making and apparatus of an animal insecticide applicator comprising a bag 22 for holding a quantity of insecticide 14, the bag having a top (unnumbered), two sides 24, 28 and a bottom 26, a first and second tie rope 70 stitched to and extending at least partially and in fact entirely across the length of a tube (unnumbered) extending the width of the bag 54, see fig. 10, the tie rope 70 having a length of rope hanging free at each end of the bag 54 for use in hanging the bag from an overhead support. The bag 111 including a coupler 126, see fig. 14, for joining the bag 111 in a side by side relationship, see fig. 15 to another bag 113. The bag 22 having a plurality of straps 36, see fig. 3a, along the top of the bag 22 through which the support or rope is inserted. Cortner, Jr. does not show the use of a rigid tubular support. Mowbray et al teach an insecticide applicator having a bag 1, filled with a quantity of insecticide 2, and having an rigid tubular support 4 coupled with and extending across the top 9 of the bag 1. With respect to claims 1 and 6, to use the rigid tubular support of Mowbray et al with the applicator of Cortner, Jr. would have been obvious to one skilled in the art in order to provide extra rigidity to the applicator to ensure maximum coverage and dispersal when in use. With respect to claims 4 and 9 to use the coupler of Cortner, Jr. Fig. 15 with the bag combination of Cortner, Jr. Fig. 3a and Mowbray et al would have been obvious to one skilled in the art in order to keep the opposite sides 24, 28 together to more efficiently dispense the insecticide within the apparatus.

Response to Arguments

Applicant's arguments filed Feb. 21, 2006 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive. Applicant claims the use of two ropes while citing that the prior art of Cortner, Jr. discloses only one. However, applicant then further states in claim 3 that one continuous length of rope is used. Therefore the prior art rejection still stands. The ropes of both applicant and Cortner, Jr. can be said to have a first portion and a second portion and are therefore two ropes according to claim 3. Further in regards to claims 2 and 8, Cortner, Jr. states that the rope 70 is secured/stitched to the bag in a desired longitudinal position, col. 7, lines 22-26. It is noted that the crossover stitching arrangement of fig. 3 may hold some allowable subject matter.

Conclusion

THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the mailing date of this final action.
